This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE FIRST SCHOOL YEAR

PREFACE.

THE average child on entering school has a vocabulary of several hundred words. These words he is able to use as his ideas call for expression. Reading for him, therefore, should at the beginning have for its object little more than giving him the ability to translate the symbol, viz., the printed or written word into the word which he knows by sound, and which conveys a tolerably clear idea to him. With few exceptions, the reasons for which will be obvious, no attempt is made in this Primer to do much more than to familiarize the child with the symbol for that of which he already knows the sound. The words used are such as may fairly be looked for in the vocabulary of the average child of five or six. The method employed is the word method; or, more properly, a combination of the word and sentence methods. Phonics are not introduced, as the author believes that their study should be taken up only after a fair stock of words has been cognized as wholes, and the child has enjoyed some practice in translating symbol into sound. He will thus have had a taste of the pleasure of reading.

As much blackboard work is preliminary to the reading even of the primer, the attempt has been made to render the transition from script to print as easy as possible. Hence, every new word is introduced in its script form. On the recurrence of the word, the print form alone is used.

The script exercises at the bottom of each page are for imitation by the child as exercises in penmanship.

No one book can give the adequate amount of reading for a whole term. The book has to be supplemented, and the various school exercises have to be correlated with the reading lesson. The danger of confining the reading to one book is that the matter is memorized by the pupils. The comparatively small number of words employed in this book, and the frequency with which they are used, ought to beget such a familiarity with them as will result in their ready recognition, and in a clear and natural expression.

Suggestions for work in number, form, and color will be found in this little book. The object of introducing these subjects is not to teach them exhaustively or even adequately, but to make the child acquainted with the forms of the terms that he is using in these other lessons.

The principal mysteries of our Faith are briefly presented to the child, as well as the prayers which every Catholic child of five or six ought to know by heart. With none of the school exercises can instruction in religion be so closely correlated as with reading ; and it is hoped that the use of this primer will be a means of opening to the youth of our land the broad field of Catholic literature.

SIGN OF THE CROSS.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

Our Father Who art in heaven; hallowed be Thy name; Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. Amen.

THE ANGELICAL SALUTATION.

Hail Mary, full of grace! the Lord is with thee; blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, Jesus. Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now and at the hour of our death. Amen.
